A Conductor's Fall.

A Conductor's Fall.

John Cannon, until recently a freight conductor on the E. & N. railroad, was arrested at Crofton Saturday and carried to Madisonville and put in jail. He is accused of stealing a gold watch and chain from the night operator at Lexington some time since, while the operator was asleep in the caboose of his (Cannon's) train, enroute to Nashville. Also with having appropriated to his own use $120. in money belonging to conductor Mitch Green, at whose house he and his family have been stopping since the death of Capt. Green's wife, several months ago. Capt. Green had befriended Cannon in every possible way, and in taking the money of his friend, he displayed base ingratitude. Young Cannon has always stood high in the esteem of the officials of the road, and was not suspected of the crime until a detective fastened the guilt on him. Cannon's wife and he believe one child, having married a daughter of Green Hancock of Crofton.

The Baited Cry.

And the old folks laugh when they find that the pleasant California liquid remedy, Sympy of Pigs, is more easily taken and more beneficial in its action than bitter, nauseous medicines. It is a most valuable family remedy, and acts on the bowels to cleanse the system, and to dispel colds, headaches and fevers. Manufactured only by the California Fig Syrup Co., San Francisco, California. For sale by H. B. Garner.

No election for teachers in the Public School was held Saturday, the order for same having resulted from a misunderstanding among the board. The election will be held on Saturday, the 13th at 10 o'clock a. m., the day after the school closes, as it has heretofore been held.

Last Friday night lightning struck the chimney of the residence of Judge Joe McCarroll. Beyond knocking off the cap of the chimney, and breaking a few of the slate shingles, no harm was done. The family were not at home, having gone on to the Judge's father's to spend a few days.

It has been determined by the State Board of Education to hold a three days institute here sometime in August. Dr. W. H. Bartholomew will conduct the session and has written Prof. Delrich making inquiries about local help. We have no doubt that our people will heartily welcome the teachers and lend every aid necessary for the success of the gathering.

We desire to call the attention of the City Council to the wretched condition of 5th street, from liberty to the depot, and the same street opposite Galt's Warehouse. This is one of the most important thoroughfares in the city and needs immediate attention. A few loads of rock and a little work would do much good. The street is so rough now, that teams are forced to go in a walk.

The congregation at the First Presbyterian church were sadly surprised Sunday when their pastor, Rev. Montgomery announced his resignation. The matter had been known for sometime by the elders, but to the most of the members it was a total surprise. Mr. May has served the church most acceptably for about two years and gives up the work now only on account of ill health. His resignation will take effect July 1st, and he has yet time for the future.

A Close Call.

Sunday afternoon young John Owsley's brother, R. P. Owsley, was riding up South Main street on a bicycle when a horse hitched in front of Mr. Metz's residence took fright at the machine and broke loose. The animal dashed straight at the young cyclist who barely had time to tumble off and scamper out of the way. The horse ran directly over the machine and on down the street, turning the corner at Mr. Fox's, and thence into Virginia street, when he again turned and continued his course down town. Strange to say neither the vehicle or horse was injured in the least. The boy got slight bruises on the knee by the fall and had a narrow escape from serious injury.

Church Notes.

The regular night services at the First Presbyterian church were not held Sunday night, the congregation being kept from the commencement sermon at the Christian church.

The Sunday School children of the Christian church held a delightful "service of song" in the auditorium of their church Sunday morning. At night Rev. Linn Cave, of Nashville, delivered the commencement sermon to the young ladies of South Kentucky College. An early hour the room was packed, scores of people being unable to gain admittance.

Rev. Barbee, an Evangelist, has been holding a series of meetings for a week past at the Cumberland Presbyterian church. Much interest is being manifested and large congregations gather there nightly.

The Methodist District Conference met at Fairview Sunday. There was a large crowd present and everybody had a pleasant time. An elegant dinner was served on the grounds. The morning sermon was preached by Rev. E. E. Campbell of this city. This was, we believe, Mr. Campbell's maiden effort, and he not only pleased his friends, but surprised every one by the naturalness and ease with which he spoke and the logic of his arguments. We predict for this young man, a bright and happy future.

PAGE'S TRIAL.

Chas. S. Page, the young merchant of Allenville, Todd county, who recently failed and was subsequently arrested, charged with crookedness, was brought to trial in the Louisville City Court Friday. About thirty people, witnesses and friends of the accused, went up with him from Allenville, and were present in the court room.

Messrs. J. H. Barker and Wilbur E. Bromberg of Louisville, represented the defendant. Capt. Abbott, assisted by Messrs. Kohn and Barker, appeared for the prosecution.

Charles Goldsmith, who holds an important position with Bamberger, Bloom & Co., was there upon the stand, and his testimony took up all the morning.

He stated that he had known Page for several years, through his dealings with the firm. Page conducted a general store at Allenville, first by himself, then with a man named Gill, as Page & Gill, and afterwards with a man named Orr, as Page & Orr. Page & Gill did not get along well, and there had been no loss of confidence in him. He wished to arrange for an extension of the indebtedness of Page and Gill to increase the amount of Page & Orr. He was questioned closely about the assets and liabilities of both firms and of himself individually, as well as a carefully considered his credit was extended on the strength of his representations. He also wanted to lay in a stock of goods. On March 16, 1887, he was sent $1,400 or $1,500 worth of goods.

He represented that he had 385 acres of land, for which a few years ago he paid $45 per acre, aggregating in value $17,225, without any encumbrance. A mortgage of $2,000 was afterward discovered. He also said he had live stock worth $3,000 and a house and lot in Allenville, in his wife's name, worth $4,000, on which $2,000 had been paid.

Mr. Goldsmith related that he heard from Page, after he left that he was having trouble with his creditors there in getting an extension. He went to Allenville to investigate Page's affairs, which, according to the statement of Mr. Orr, whom he first met, were very much complicated. They had dissolved partnership, Orr taking the business and assuming the indebtedness. When he met Page, the latter told him everything he had been treated badly by Gill. He also told Mr. Goldsmith that he only owned 180 acres of the land, the rest belonging to his wife. He added that he owed his mother about $3,000, which he had put in with his other liabilities, and some other money besides.

Mr. Goldsmith then pressed him for his books and accounts to cover his indebtedness, when he found they were not in his hands, but in the possession of Gill. Some of the bills which had been shipped April, 1887, and could not be found, were looked for. They were ascertained to have been fraudulently shipped away, it was testified, "by collusion with the railroad agent, who had afterwards been discharged. They put detectives on the case to work up the matter, and the goods were finally recovered. The Sheriff at Elkton, Ky. had nothing to satisfy the firm's claim and could do nothing, and it was upon the strength of his false representation that the goods had been obtained, he said.

Several other witnesses were examined for the prosecution, when Mr. Rhea, of counsel for the defense, moved the discharge of the accused on the testimony already offered by the prosecution.

Judge Thompson took the matter under advisement until the next day, when the motion was over-ruled.

The witnesses for the defense were then examined.

Mr. Page was the first to go on the stand. He admitted substantially most of the facts as cited in the statement of Mr. Goldsmith, but tried to show that he was acting in perfect good faith all the way through. He explained that he did have control of the accounts at the times he stated, and that Mr. Gus Mitchell, was at that time, at work on the book trying to get them straightened out.

When the testimony had all been heard, Judge Thompson continued the case until next Friday at noon, when the argument will be heard.

Mr. J. H. Winfree was unfortunate in losing a fine milch cow last Saturday. The cow was sent out to a pasture and became foundered in less than an hour.
